

Rusk in Tribute To J. F. Dulles At Rites Here

A man who should know, Secretary of State Dean Rusk, paid high tribute here to John Foster Dulles.

Speaking at a service marking the second anniversary of the death of the former Secretary of State, Mr. Rusk called Mr. Dulles "a man who never spared his energy . . . who brought his total resources to the task at hand."

MAN OF COURAGE

Mr. Dulles, Mr. Rusk said, was "a man who cherished freedom . . . who understood 2,000 years of effort to establish the rule of law . . . a man who had great love and respect for his own country . . . a man of courage derived from deep faith."

Rev. Roswell P. Barnes, executive secretary of America of the World Council of Churches, also spoke at the service at the chapel of the Interchurch Center, 475 Riverside dr.

Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency and brother of the late secretary, represented the family.

All three men took part in the dedication of the new John Foster Dulles Library and Research Center, which will be installed at the offices of the National Archives, also 475 Riverside dr.
